

Elisabeth Cassidy

I started working at the Y ten years ago. I was first hired to initiate a new afterschool program. After three years I also had the privilege to direct the pre-school, childcare and drop in child care programs. During my tenure in these positions I was able to participate in the development of some pretty profound youth that will certainly better our community and country.

In the fall of 2017 I had the opportunity and privilege to move into the role as the Executive Director of the Y. I am so proud to be one of many leaders in a movement that focuses on responding to community needs and strengthening families through the range of life stages. As I raise my own two daughters at the Y, I am incredibly grateful for the investment and hard work that Sheridan residents have poured into the Y over the past sixty years. It is my hope to advance both the Y's ability to respond to the changing needs of our community and stay true to a wonderful legacy that has been built right here in Sheridan Wyoming.
